INSTRUCTIONS

1. To apply the silkscreen, we need to make silkscreen paste with each of the colors. To do this, thicken each paint using a little silkscreen medium until it's the consistency of pudding.
2. Lay your silkscreen with the stripes going perpendicular to your plate and down toward one end. Use your finger to apply the stripes. We did the stripes of the same thickness with the same color. From thick to thin we did: Cranberry Sauce, Indigo, Olive You, Banana Boat, and Pumpkin Pie.
3. Rinse and dry your silkscreen. Put the screen on the blank part of the plate, lining up a stripe of the same size with one already painted. Repeat applying the stripe colors.
4. Rinse and dry your silkscreen again. Then apply it again but this time turn it so the stripes are going horizontally on the plate. Voila, plaid! The stripes are not long enough to go the length of the plate, so start at one end and END where you screen on one of the big stripes.
5. Rinse out the screen and dry it again, and to continue the stripes, put your screen down on the big stripe you ended on and continue to make the long stripes to the end of the plate.

TIPS

- When using the writer bottle, apply gentle pressure to get small seeds.
- The shape of the leaves are two parentheses touching to make a single leaf, then put one more of those on each side.
- Be generous with the paint to get the most even color.
